Community-Based Home Health Care Demonstration Project Moldova – 2006

The External Collaborator will develop a proposal for a community-based home health care demonstration project in Moldova, designed to test the benefits and cost effectiveness of expanding the range of social services provided by government in collaboration with NGOs, health care providers, social assistants, and the informal sector (family, friends, faith community) to include home health care.

The proposal will specify the main design features for the demonstration project, the roles to be played by various participants, the general work plan to be followed, and the criteria to be used in evaluating the project. The proposal will also include options for various design parameters, as appropriate. It will be written in simple language, to facilitate translation and use by non-native speakers of English.

The External Collaborator will spend one week in Moldova working with the Ministry of Labour and Social Protection to identify the needs and constraints associated with the project. He will spend one day at ILO Budapest being briefed for this mission and one day in debriefing on return.
